China yesterday asked recognition as an independent nation. The great Pacific celestial empire of more than 400,000,000 souls, possessors of the world's oldest civilization and culture, pleaded with the younger powers for her sovereign rights.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States and chief of the the United States and chief of the Chinese delegation, read before the secret committee on Far Eastern affairs of the conference an expose of the demands of the Asiatic republic. Ten points are enumerated by the Chinese who move the adoption of the principles embodied therein before subcommittees pro-ceed to the working out of applications of these principles, in secret the various problems of the is convinced that the armament conference will not be long drawn out. Members of the delegation made it very plain last night that the progress being effected in considering the various proposals is exceedingly swift. The Chinese proposals made yesterday in the first big secret conference of the delegations are to be considered from a very friendly viewpoint. They are not to be discussed immediately, but will be taken up in their regular order by the delegates as soon as they are reached. And both the British and Japanese delegations have let it be known that they saw very much merit in many of the suggestions. At the same time members of the

MEETING MAKES REAL PROGRESS

Conferees Exchange Views Without Fear of Misunderstanding.

Agreement on broad general principles to settle the Far Eastern and Pacific muddled problems can be reached by the present armament conference in session in this city. Members of every delegation that participated in yesterday's meeting expressed this view last night. Some declared that this agreement could be looked forward to very soon Others said that it probably would take much time. But there was a complete unanimity in the opinions expressed by the various delega-tions. Of course none would talk officially, or allow himself to be quoted for publication. They did, however, explain that the initial session behind closed doors, in which opportunity was afforded for all to talk both across the table and with each other, was a revelation of purpose. The general slogan was one for speeding up developments. Cutting out of unnecessary debair was the one thing all believed nec-

As an instance, it was cited that when the committee met the sugwhen the committee met the suggestion was made that an adjournment be taken for a couple of days while a special committee examined the outlook and prepared a program. Arthur J. Balfour, the British delegation chief, interposed an objection. He said that it would be a good thing informally to talk things over. This was done things over. This was done, and it developed that all of the delega-tions were in a receptive mood. The result was that the Chinese delegation at once was afforded oppotunity to express its views to suggest a program for action. Probjems Dangerous.

While there was an optimistic feeling among the delegations, and many expressed the hope that days rather than weeks or months, would mark the life of the conference, it likewise was agreed that the prob-lems now up for consideration are extremely knotty and at all times extremely dangerous. Because of this there are certain members of the most important delegations who believe that what should be done noticeable in Mr. Balfour's voice when he threw the stone. He seemed to say:
